Follow-up to 31st PCB Thematic Segment on Non-discrimination
27 June 2013
Opening

- UNAIDS EXD highlighted importance of addressing HIV-related discrimination
  - Devastating impact; the "hardest zero"
- Keynote by Rev. MacDonald Sembereka - shared personal experiences with HIV-related discrimination
  - "The blame for discrimination lies with all of us. How do we reach the 3 zeros if we continue to marginalize pockets of society?"
- Urged people to be “on the right side of history”
Sectoral discussions on HIV-related discrimination

- Health care
- Employment
- Education
- Justice
- Community
Health Care

• Discrimination in health care - confirmed as major barrier in the response for:
  • People living with HIV
  • Other key populations
• Various programmes presented:
  • Promotion and protection of patients’ rights
  • Capacity-building of health care staff
  • Consulting and supporting key populations in accessing health care
Employment

- Employment - fundamental basis for zero discrimination - reduces poverty, inequality; provides financial stability
- Some programmes discussed:
  - Establishing a HIV tribunal
  - Enacting protective workplace policies
  - Ensuring protection for marginalized or vulnerable workers
  - Removing HIV-related restrictions on entry, stay and residence
Education

- Education - allows children to grow into safe, HIV-free and productive lives
- Highlights included:
  - Usefulness of working with teachers, school management and students
  - Importance of student to student efforts
  - Ensuring access to life-skills and sexuality education
  - Ensuring children living with HIV are protected from discrimination in schools.
Justice

• Laws and law enforcement can positively and negatively affect access to HIV services
• Examples of justice sector programmes included:
  • Provision of legal aid
  • Sensitization of police, lawyers, judges
  • Reduction of HIV discrimination in prisons
• Michael Kirby: "Greatest discrimination is to 'airbrush' out key populations because people don’t feel comfortable with them" - must face these issues or epidemic will not be fully addressed
Community

- Community - main source of support for people living with and affected by HIV
- Showcased wide range of creative media campaigns (films, TV spots, postcards, posters, etc.)
- Other programmes highlighted:
  - Provision of psycho-social peer support to people living with HIV
  - Social support for families affected by HIV
Strategies for Expanding

• Integrating HIV-related discrimination reduction as critical part of national AIDS responses
• Fully funding programmes to reduce HIV-related discrimination
• Putting PLHIV and other key pops at centre of efforts to reduce HIV-related discrimination
Integrating HIV-related discrimination reduction into national AIDS responses

- Discrimination-reduction programmes: tangible way to address some human rights issues
- Often referred to in NSPs, but rarely costed, budgeted or implemented
- Key integration strategies:
  - Ensuring those affected input into funding proposals, planning, programmes
  - Including programmes as critical enablers through investment approach
Funding programmes to reduce HIV-related discrimination

- Insufficient funding remains major obstacle to getting to zero discrimination
- Importance recognized by Global Fund - new funding model calls for countries to address human rights issues
- Need to be able to take programmes to scale to get results
Putting PLHIV and other key pops at centre of efforts to reduce HIV-related discrimination

• Both empowers individuals and addresses realities on the ground
• PLHIV - countries' most valuable and under-utilized resource to address discrimination
• Programmes discussed:
  • UN Plus - UN in-house work
  • HIV speakers programme - supporting PLHIV to be advocates against discrimination
Summary of the day

- Jonathan Cohen, Co-chair of UNAIDS Reference Group on HIV and Human Rights:
  - Discrimination "paradox" - "the more we talk about it, the less we do about it"
  - Scaling-up is needed in terms of firm commitment and sufficient funding
  - Reflect on report to GA in Sept. 2013 - "Will this be the report where, because of real commitment, real courage and real money at all levels, significant progress will finally be made towards the 'hardest zero'"
Closing

• Closing remarks by Jan Beagle, UNAIDS DXD:
  • Thematic segment allows for discussions of complex issues in environment that promotes respect for varying views
  • No "magic bullet" for discrimination exists; multitude of approaches required
  • Joint Programme reiterates full commitment to working with PCB to end HIV-related discrimination
